Cost of Memorial - $16,000

No. of names inscribed - 1619, of Winnipeg and near vicinity.

To secure these names from the Department of Militia, five years ago, there was a cost of $1,100. It would be almost impossible to obtain them now; at least it is estimated that there would be an expenditure of $100,000 to secure such a list of names at this time.

Men and Women of the Winnipeg Soldiers' Relatives' Memorial Association, Your Honor, Ladies and Gentlemen:—

AFTER three years of earnest labor we have met here to witness today the fruition of our work, the dedicating in love and affectionate remembrance of this simple and dignified Monument erected to convey to posterity the names of these members of our families who, when the dark shadow of the vulture Hun hovered over the land of their birth or adoption, went forth from our homes and firesides, most of them in the full bloom and beauty of youthful manhood and womanhood, to interpose their bodies between the enemy and those they loved, and without stint and without fear after performing such deeds of high renown as have never been surpassed in human endeavor since the history of man has been recorded, yielded up their lives, their youth, their all for the Glory of God, the safety of their Country, and the welfare of generations yet to be born. Our loved ones are not dead but triumphantly alive, and their spirits are with us today, and I say directly to them, if they can hear my voice, that we are here on this occasion to bear witness to them of our affectionate appreciation and gratitude for the sacrifices which they made and to say that their hardships, their wounds, and their physical death have borne in our hearts a fruit of gratitude and honorable homage, which the generations of posterity should ever keep fresh and which shall be an inspiration and example to our children and to their children's children so long as our race shall endure—

“Great granite stone, speak what our love enrolls—
The glorious passing of heroic souls.
We do not number them among the dead:
They rest in many fields, where Valour bled.”

Where-e'er their bodies may be scattered, in the soil of three continents or in the waters of the seas, their names are assembled here, and in the days to come the child may point with pride to his father's name, and the wife and mother or sister read with re-kindled eye the honored name of the husband, brother or son who was one of that army of peace-loving men, who at duty's call left their various occupations, and in the might and strength of a righteous cause shook down from his throne and power the would-be despoiler of the world and "for all we have and are" restored the birthright of the British race and of Humanity to freedom.

As President of this Association I desire to thank all those faithful men and women who worked so earnestly and unselfishly on the various Committees to crown the work with success. It required great patience and perseverance and the inability to recognize any obstacle as insuperable to accomplish this, but may it not be that it was because our Canadian boys came from stock and from firesides where such characteristics were fundamental that they never failed to take an objective, never yielded a foot of ground once taken, and never ultimately lost a gun, and which has filled our national story with such synonyms for great achievement as the names of Ypres, Passchendale, Vimy, Festubert, Cambrai, and a score of others scattered from the tropics to the Polar ice, and half around the World.

Dead? NO! They live, they are immortal. Hence the figure surmounting this Monument, as you will observe later, shows life and triumph. Their example, their sacrifices, their achievements can only die when all that love and patriotism means is dead, and honor is no more. Our spirits in love and grateful homage and without fear salute their spirits today, and offer them this simple tribute of our affection and lasting remembrance, which will be formally dedicated to their memory in his address by the Honorable Mr. Justice Dennistoun, formerly Colonel of the 53rd Battalion, C.E.F., and thereafter solemnly consecrated by Rev. Dr. A. B. Baird.

The whole design of the Monument was prepared by Colonel J. N. Semmens of the 78th Battalion, Winnipeg Grenadiers. The model of the figure was executed by a fellow townsman, Mrs. Hilliard Taylor, who has achieved an artistic triumph in this work. The bronze tablets and lettering were prepared by a Canadian firm, Henry Birks and Sons, the granite stonework being furnished and erected by the Winnipeg firm of Wyatt and Ireland, all of whom we thank for the excellence of their work.

*DEDICATORY ADDRESS BY THE HONORABLE MR. JUSTICE
DENNISTOUN, C.B.E. AT THE UNVEILING CEREMONY,
MAY 13th, 1923.*

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:—

IT IS with a feeling of great satisfaction that we meet here today. For five years we have desired a monument which would bear the names of our kinsmen and kinswomen who fell in the war.

Today that aspiration is satisfied and we look with pleasure and delight upon this beautiful statue with feelings of thankfulness in our hearts.

I join with our President in paying a tribute to Mrs. Hilliard Taylor, the talented sculptor, whose brain and hand conceived and carried into execution the fine figure before us. As a work of art it appeals to our sense of beauty, and as a physical achievement it excites our admiration that a woman's hand could create this heroic figure, vibrant with life and action, from the common materials—metal and clay—transformed by fire.

I wish also to express to Mr. Deacon, our President, and to his energetic officers and assistants, our thanks for their unremitting efforts to make this memorial what we see it today. I know the labor has been great, and I tender our thanks, in the full assurance that you will heartily support me in so doing.

In erecting this monument our objects have been two-fold:

First, we wish to perpetuate in stone and bronze for the information of those who come after us, the names of those whom we love but whom we have lost; for we desire those who look upon this monument in years to come to realize—to have some comprehension of—what a great international war really means.

Whosoever, in the future, learns from this monument that 1619 men and women from this place sacrificed their lives, in the late war will have cause for astonishment. That a comparatively small community in Canada, thousands of miles from the battle-grounds, should mourn 1619 dead, is in itself a fearful commentary on the hideousness of war, and a warning to those who come after to strive with all their might for the avoidance of a like fate in the future.

Our second object in building this monument is of a personal nature. It is to satisfy a natural longing of our own hearts.

In all civilized countries there is a satisfaction in honouring and caring for the resting places of the dead. We have had no opportunity to do that. We have had heretofore green cemeteries to which we could go, no place where we could deposit a few flowers, or train a creeping vine upon a modest but appropriate tombstone, for our dear ones were not here. They rest far away across the sea. But now we feel that in this monument we have created a place to which we may turn with affectionate regard, for it represents to us in concrete form what has hitherto been the imaginary creation of our dreams alone.

This monument is not set up as a memorial of war, or of patriotism, or of glory, or of victory. We leave such to other hands. There is nothing militaristic, nothing provocative, about this monument. It is, and is intended to be, a simple tribute of affection, a memorial of love, a testimony to personal loss—Accordingly on the West side we have placed these words:—

"Erected by the loving hearts of kinsmen."

Upon the East side you will find these words:—

"At the going down of the sun and in the morning we will remember them."

We need no monument to enable us to remember them, but the time will come when this will become a stone of remembrance in the true sense, for they who come after will not have the personal knowledge that is ours.

For us it is but a symbol—a symbol of a multitude of small white crosses—for each of us, one cross—somewhere beyond the seas—some of us see with the mind's eye two crosses, and one dear mother, who is here today, sees three crosses.

"Some of them are set in the fair fields of England, many are on the scarred ridges of France, or on the green plains of Belgium; some are on the rocks of Gallipoli, or in the valleys of Greece, or in the hot sands of Palestine or Mesopotamia.

And there are some of us who can visualize no cross, but only the rolling waves of a vast ocean, or an unmarked unidentified grave in what was once No Man's Land.

And on the South side we have the words:—

"They died the noblest death that men may die
Fighting for God, and Truth, and Liberty."

We believed their cause was just when we sent them forth, and they believed it when they served, and when they died.

Henceforth it is our duty to prevent war. By Leagues of Nations, by International Courts, by whatsoever means we can devise, provided always that we can never arbitrate, never temporize, as to the surrender of our God, His Truth, or His Liberty. We must fight again whensoever those are assailed.

What think you is wrong with the world today? I think the answer can be given in one word—Hatred! The world is full of hate, and there will be no real peace, until the Divine command is heard and observed—"Forgive your enemies."

I see, when I call imagination to my aid,—four white crosses marking the graves of four Canadian lads, who lie side by side in a German cemetery in France. They are surrounded by a thousand of the enemy! There they lie, in the now peaceful cemetery, side by side, friend and foe, until the last trumpet sound. Do they hate each other now, those Canadian boys and those German lads? If we believe our teaching they do not! There is no room for hate in the great beyond. There, there is truth, and knowledge—but no hate.

Let us then, under the shadow of this monument, resolve that we will do what we can to destroy war, and that we will begin by destroying the hate which still lingers in our own hearts. When we can say, and the nations of the world can say—"Our enemies are forgiven"—then, and not till then, can we look for real and lasting peace on earth.

But today let us lift up our hearts. Let us remember with loving pride those whose names are here.

Time has assuaged the bitterness of our grief, the passing of the years has soothed the poignancy of our sorrows, so let us depart hence with a feeling of thankfulness and satisfaction, that a long wished for consummation has been attained, and let the bright and joyous figure of our Bronze hero henceforth take possession of our hearts and minds, as the embodiment of our united, and now satisfied, aspirations.

I thank you all.

In Memoriam

A prairie land
Of wide and treeless spaces,
Cleft by two rivers
Joining in their flow,
Sound of swift paddles in the quiet places,
The song of birds, the tramp of buffalo.

Across the land,
And up the mighty rivers
Came men and women
Adventuring for homes,
Built on the river's bank a fortress
Of hand-hewn prairie stones.

There these few brave
Fought winters' cold and frost-flame;
And summers' sun,
And hardships still untold
Wrested from virgin soil the wheat fields—
And found themselves grown old.

And these brave men,
Who came from lands afar,
Were fathers of the men
Whose sons we are.

The place they built
Has crumbled to a gateway;
A stately city spreads across the plain;
The sound of thousands fill the sunny noonday—
A people born of all that past of pain.

And then came war
And sounding through that city
A call came to the Empire wide;
And all the best and bravest
Heard and answered,
And fought and suffered, and thrice nobly died.

And this fair bronze
With smiling face triumphant
Will stand forever
Near the rivers' flow,
Asking the Future's people to remember
Wherefore they fought, and why they had to go.

And from this spot
To which all history leads us
All history shall begin anew, if we
Feel that this end
Is but a new beginning,
If we can worthy be

Worthy that smile
That shout of courage burning
Worthy the names of all the brave who died;
Worthy that he should stand
On guard forever
Over our honour and our pride

—Hilda Hession
